

Bio601 test account application and agreement form

This Bio601 website aims to provide rapid access to data sets of use to the research community and will place these in publicly accessible repositories. The system will support data and interoperability standards to maximize access and ensure ease of integration with other global resources.

By submitting an application form for your Account, you hereby agree to the following conditions:

1. The recipient commit to conducting appropriate research and sharing, in turn, resulting data and analysis with the research community.
2. The exclusive ownership to the Sequence Information will be with its original Owner. The recipient has no right to claim ownership or obtain Intellectual Property Rights on the information unless written permission to do so is obtained from the Owner.
3. The recipient agrees to ensure fair and equitable acknowledgement of the Owner's contributions in all publications where the information is used.
4. The recipient agrees to protect the confidentiality of managed access data sets.
5. This website makes no warranties as to the accuracy, correctness or title of the information. Neither does it make any warranties as to the quality and correctness of the materials being furnished. This website also makes no warranties that the information will not infringe any patent or intellectual property rights protection.
